

Suzanne Malveaux

Emcee; Former Anchor and White House Correspondent, CEO and President of Malveaux Global Media, and ALS Advocate

Award-winning journalist Suzanne Malveaux is the CEO and President of Malveaux Global Media. With more than 30 years of reporting, producing, and story-telling experience, Malveaux recently left CNN after two decades of bringing ground-breaking journalism to the network. There, she covered the White House for ten years, interviewed five US Presidents, embedded with US troops in Afghanistan breaking news of a terrorist attack, and most recently traveling to Ukraine to report on the war. Malveaux has won awards for her anchoring and series on ALS, and produced a 90-Minute Documentary on Former President Barack Obama.